Recap: Chapter 17

1

Mail Merge Combines Two Parts

A main document and a data source work together.

2

Data Sources Are Just Tables

One row per person, one column per detail.

3

Fields Pull in Real Data

Preview Results swaps placeholders for actual information.

4

Finish & Merge Completes the Job

It creates one personalized copy per recipient.

Today's Objectives

1

Build a Table of Contents

Turn your headings into an automatic, clickable outline.

2

Update the Table of Contents

Refresh the TOC after adding or changing headings.

3

Add Footnotes & Endnotes

Attach a source or note to a specific point in the text.

4

Navigate Long Documents

Move around a long file quickly, without endless scrolling.

Table of Contents Basics

1

Built on Heading Styles

Word builds a TOC automatically from any text using Heading 1, Heading 2, and so on.

2

References Tab → Table of Contents

Click where you want it, then choose a built-in TOC style.

Page Numbers Included

Each entry links to a heading and shows its current page number.

4

Click to Jump

Ctrl+Click any TOC entry to jump straight to that section.

Theory · Updating the TOC

Updating the Table of Contents

1

Update Table Button

Right-click the TOC and choose Update Field, or click Update Table above it.

2

Update Page Numbers Only

Choose this if headings haven't changed, just their position.

3

Update Entire Table

Choose this if you have added, removed, or renamed any headings.

4

TOC Doesn't Update Itself

Editing the document never updates the TOC automatically. You must trigger it.

Footnotes & Endnotes

1

What a Footnote Is

It is a small note at the bottom of the page, linked to a number in the text.

2

References Tab → Insert Footnote

Click where you want the number, then type the note that appears below.

3

Endnotes Work the Same Way

Endnotes collect at the very end of the document, instead of each page.

4

Renumbering Is Automatic

Add or delete a footnote, and every number after it updates itself.

Navigating Long Documents

1

The Navigation Pane

View tab → Navigation Pane shows every heading as a clickable outline.

2

Ctrl+F to Search

Find text instantly, instead of scrolling through dozens of pages.

3

Go To (Ctrl+G)

Jump straight to a specific page number, footnote, or heading.

4

Collapsing Headings

Click the arrow beside a heading to hide its section temporarily.

PRACTICE

Build a Table of Contents

1

Type Three Headings

Type “Introduction,” “Methods,” and “Results” on separate lines, spaced apart.

2

Apply Heading 1

Select all three lines. Apply the Heading 1 style.

3

Insert the TOC

Click above “Introduction.” Then References tab → Table of Contents → Automatic Table 1.

4

Test a Link

Ctrl+Click “Results” in the TOC. Confirm it jumps to that heading.

PRACTICE

Add a Footnote

1

Type a Sentence

Type: “MS Word is used worldwide for creating documents.”

2

Insert a Footnote

Click after “worldwide.” Then References tab → Insert Footnote.

3

Type the Note

At the bottom of the page, type “Source: Microsoft Word documentation.”

4

Add a Second Footnote

Add one more footnote elsewhere in the sentence. Confirm both numbers are correct.

Wrap-Up

Key Takeaways

1

Headings Build the TOC

Heading styles are what the Table of Contents reads.

2

TOC Needs Manual Updates

Right-click → Update Field after any change.

3

Footnotes Renumber Automatically

Add or delete one, and the rest adjust themselves.

4

The Navigation Pane Is Your Map

See and jump between every heading at a glance.
